TESTER: _____

WALLY:  Here's a detective test to see how good a problem-solving detective you are.  Here's your detective's hat, if you would like to wear it.  I will show you some pictures of problem scenes.  See if you can solve them on your own.  Good luck!

#1. Suppose you ask another friend to play with you and she refuses.  What would you do?
#2. Suppose you broke your mother's favorite vase.  What would you do?

#3. Suppose your sister started teasing you and you teased her back, then your mother (father) sent you to your room. What would you do?

#4. Suppose you are constantly teased and made fun of by another child at school.  What would you do?

#5. Suppose you really want this toy in the store but your father won't let you have it.  What would you do?

#6. Suppose you just ripped your brand new pair of pants that your mother bought for a special event. What would you do?

#7. Suppose another child calls you a baby for playing dolls.  What would you do?

#8. Suppose you are lonely and want to play with other kids on the playground.  What would you do?

#9. Suppose the cupcake that you've been saving has suddenly disappeared and you see icing on your sister's mouth.  What would you do?

#10. Suppose your brother wrecks your model and you've been working on it for two weeks.  What would you do?

#11. Suppose there was only one piece of pizza left and you and your sister both wanted it.  What would you do?
#12. Suppose your teacher is mad at you because you didn't come in from recess on time.  What would you do?

#13. Suppose a child much younger than you started hitting you.  What would you do?

#14. Suppose this boy had been playing for a long, long time with a bike and you wanted to play with it. What would you do?

#15. Suppose you want to meet a new kid who has just come into your neighborhood. What would you do?
